An increase in total enrollments of 2,366 students occurred between the current Winter term and the Winter term of 1963. This change is summarized in table VI--Comparative Trends of Students Enrolled at East Lansing Campus (see page 8 of this report).

The increase of 187 new students resulted mainly from an increase of 144 in the number of new transfer students enrolled. These students were distributed as follows:

College of Agriculture (especially in Terminal Courses)	40 Students
Unclassified curriculum	34
College of Business	19
University College	17
College of Natural Science	16

It is interesting to note that 88.6% (53.8% + 34.8%) of the sections were offered to undergraduate students during the Winter term. The average class size on the campus was 28 students, ranging from an average of 41 in University College to an average of 15 in the College of Agriculture. In spite of a heavy proportion of upper division undergraduate sections, the Colleges of Social Science and Business maintained an average class size that was larger than the campus average.

NOTE: Average class sizes are calculated by dividing the total number of all types of sections offered during the Winter term into the total number of students attending these sections.
